NASHVILLE, Tenn. (June 23, 2023) — Digital Diagnostics President, COO, and Co-Founder, Seth Rainford is a graduate of The Nashville Health Care Council’s 2023 class of the Nashville Health Care Council Fellows.

Council Fellows is a five-month intensive program gathering the nation’s brightest healthcare minds to have intentional dialogue about challenges, opportunities and pivotal moments in the industry. The program leverages expertise, collaboration and curiosity to transform its Fellows through innovation and leadership.

“It was an honor and a privilege to learn and grow alongside such accomplished and impactful industry peers,” said Seth Rainford. “I look forward to continued collaboration and connection with my cohort as we pursue new ways of innovating and using that innovation to develop strategies that can help improve access, reduce cost, and improve the quality of healthcare.”

This year’s Fellows graduates consist of individuals from healthcare organizations of all sizes and sectors. The Council Fellows program is built to encourage collaboration and create space for healthcare leaders to unite behind a shared goal of creating lasting, impactful change in the industry.

“Magic happens when you get advocates for change in the same room. It’s energizing to witness, and I’m honored to support the program and lead dialogue year after year,” said Council Fellows Chair Michael Burcham. “The stimulating environment and conversations spark ideas, new products and services, and solutions to age-old problems.
